

Activity UML diagram

Exercise

An order for computer with software is realized in the company SPRINT as follows: In case of new customers the sales department requires making prepayment, while in other cases, it at once fixes the conditions of payment and transfer kit. In the hardware department there is collected and then assembled the computer. At the same time, the software department completes the operating system and utilities requested by the customer. After the transfer of hardware the whole software is installed, and the sales department issues an invoice. For local clients (with seat located at a distance of 50 kilometers from the company) is sent the company car with the ordered set and invoice, unless the client decided that he would receive his order in the company. In other cases, the kit is sent via courier. Create the activity diagram.

Proposition of solution

(see the next site)

